

4.4.1 The specific activities

The specific training activities are those associated with the development of your thesis, such as presentations at conferences, published papers, participation in projects, research stays in other laboratories ...

Each program has defined the criteria for the evaluation of these activities in its verification memory.

To consult the specific activities at your program and its recognition in equivalent hours, access the website of your programme by this link, and enter the section " PhD Development // Specific and Cross curricular training activities ".